COMPADRE FIRST IN WOODMERE STAKES

Little Son of Colin Comes Back From Long Vacation in Great Style.

Compadre, the little black son of the immortal Colin, added another stake to his long list yesterday afternoon at the Aqueduct track. He won the Woodmere Stakes from a high class field in commanding fashion. At the end of the six furlong journey he was a length ahead of Lieut. Raymond Belmont's Jynite, which took second honors by a length and a half from Panaman.

It was Compadre's first race in two months, and he came back with a vengeance stronger and faster than ever. Instead of shying to the front as he had in his previous races, he had been in his custom, he followed the pace until entering the homestretch.

At that point the hunter gave him free rein and before the final post was reached Compadre was in front. Once in command he stepped along at a fast pace and won the race by a length and a half from Panaman.

After a dozen defeats in the Woodmere Stakes, Compadre was graduated from the maiden ranks. She defeated a big field of juvenile fillies in the race, and in the five furlong journey she was half a length ahead of Harry Payne Whitney's Petrol.

Great Speed in Trials.

Since early in the spring Ballet Dancer has displayed a tremendous burst of speed in her early morning trials. Often she has beaten Ophelia and Questionnaire, but in her races she ran only in "spots" and was always beaten off.

Before each of her races she talked about the speed and stamina she displayed in the morning. "There's something materially wrong somewhere," he said. "I've seen a host of 'morning glory' and if this filly is one she is a brand new kind of horse."

After studying her carefully all year he finally solved the problem in her race last Saturday. He found out why she ran so fast in the morning.

Yesterday Fitzsimmons engaged Rice to give Ballet Dancer a touch of the whip and the change had the desired effect. Rice got her away well and allowed her to lead the field.

MISS POLLAK STAR IN STATE TENNIS

Scores Easily Over Mrs. Hartmann—Miss Wagner Reaches the Third Round.

By DANIEL. BASEBALL, under the splendid management of the Anglo-American League, has taken such firm hold on the British public that plans already have been made for the operation of an eight club major league in Great Britain just as soon as the war is over. The new organization will take in London, Manchester, Sheffield, Birmingham, Leeds, Glasgow and Edinburgh. Not only the English but the Scotch as well have become great baseball fans.

According to a letter which we received yesterday from H. E. Booker, managing director of the league in London, a game between the American and Canadian teams drew more than 25,000 persons at Glasgow on August 10. The game at Stamford Bridge on July 4, which was attended by the King, attracted more than 40,000.

Booker, who is an American from California and who some years ago raced a stable, hopes that he soon will have a real world's series between the big series winner here and the pennant winner of the Anglo-American League. He also stated that the league is planning to play the series in France to play the series of American soldiers. He also stated the league standing, which shows the American army leading, with the American navy second. Booker's letter, which is intensely interesting even to those who have no particular interest in American baseball, follows:

"I take pleasure in enclosing you herewith the standing of the league for the season so far. Our season comes to a close here on next Saturday so far as the league is concerned, but we are playing Sunday baseball throughout September until the 29th of that month. Our league opens next year in the middle of May.

"As a source of news I might mention that baseball is growing in popularity here very rapidly. So far this season we have played about 150 games and this includes matches played in Scotland, and by the time this letter reaches you in Ireland also.

"We are endeavoring to make arrangements for the winning team of the league to visit France about the middle of September to play different teams throughout the camps—against teams composed of American enlisted men. Every team in the league has at least four or five professional players. The United States Navy team has Pennies Hayes, McNally, and the United States Army team has Latiffe, formerly of Detroit; Batholomy, Tobin and similar men in each of the Canadian teams of the league.

"Three weeks ago last Saturday we played at Glasgow with the Naval team from headquarters and the Canadian team from Sunningdale, which drew 28,000 people. Our attendance locally for Saturday games varies from 3,000 to 10,000.

"The league has more than paid its way and at the end of next month we hope to be in a position to turn over to the three charities of the league from $10,000 to $15,000. These charities are St. Dunstan's Blind Institution, the British Red Cross and the Canadian Red Cross. At the start of the league we were going to divide the profits between the American and British Red Cross, but Gen. Blüde, who is in charge of the league, we were here to give and not receive. The British press thought that this was a very generous view to take. The brand of baseball that we are playing is first class and we have had many games scoring 2 to 1 and 3 to 2.

"At the beginning of the league we played three out of four games with an inning of six. We have thousands of rudimentary rules of baseball, each with a diagram of the diamond at the back, which are given out to the British portion of the public. This enables them to grasp the rough facts of the game, and where we started at first with people leaving before the finish of the games they are now quite as enthusiastic as the American portion of the public.

"In an enclosing you will find a souvenir of the league and also one of our programmes. Until the war is over the entire profits of the league are devoted to the above mentioned charities, but directly the war is over we will start an eight team league composed of no doubt the following cities: Birmingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Manchester, Glasgow, Edinburgh and London. The players will be obtained from the professional ball players who are in the league for at least one season after the war.

"There will be supplemented by players from minor or 'B' leagues in the States. The people who are back of the league are thirty of the most prominent Americans at present in Great Britain, both socially and financially. Our vice-president is W. A. Parsons of Coney Island, New York.

"The official umpire of the league is Arlie Latham, formerly of the St. Louis Browns, one of America's most famous ball players after the war. I might mention here that he holds the record as far as athletes are concerned of holding the longest conversation with His Majesty the King of England at one of our league matches held at Stamford Bridge grounds on the Fourth of July. Here we played before an attendance of 40,000 people.

"The attendance of their majesties and the royal family removed any doubt that we were serious and as to whether the league will become a success in Great Britain. This was undoubtedly the most momentous game in history. I am looking forward to the time when a world series will be a regular world series. As you will no doubt understand the British sportsman does not agree that the baseball championship in America for the world's series is a proper 'world series.' I feel confident that this obstacle will be removed in a very short time by games between winners of the Anglo-American League and the winners of the National and American leagues.

"From the way things are progressing in baseball here this is far nearer than the average individual would think. Yours faithfully, "H. E. BOOKER."

Lewis's Boast of Reducing Weight a Futility One. Ted Lewis boasts that when he enters the ring with Benny Leonard in Newark next Monday night he will be lighter than a feather. He has been working for a week for a newspaper men at Long Branch yesterday. Lewis declared that he already was down to 133 pounds and that he could easily make 135 by 3 o'clock on Monday. This business of reducing weight can do Lewis no good and may work him a lot of harm, for he needs all his strength against an antagonist of Leonard's hitting power and cleverness.

If Lewis could come into the ring at 133 and still be strong there would be no doubt that he would be a contender for the world title.
